A SOUTHERN WOMAN'S SUCCESS IN JOURNALISM.

(From Atlanta News.)
The friends of Miss Harrydell Hallmark, of Augusta, one of the most prominent Southern journalists who has made a success of her work will be interested to learn further of her wide field of work in the North. Born of a prominent Georgia family, a society girl of Augusta for several seasons, she decided to take up journalism and she has progressed in a manner both satisfactory and brilliant, and occupies a position of which she may be justly proud. She now holds the responsible position as one of the six associate editors who assist Mr. Chas. Emory Smith in his great work on the Philadelphia Press. One must stop to consider that five of these editors are men, while Miss Hallmark completes the sextette. She was given this position last September. Her first position was as society editor of the Augusta Chronicle, when she was a social leader in that city.

Miss Hallmark prides herself upon her own writings along political lines, and this is a field in which women rarely ever penetrate, as it is usually not adapted to their line. She reported upon the Democratic national convention, together with half a dozen men, but special first place was given to her story, and her name appeared in the columns. It is interesting to her many friends to note that she was the first with the exception of one man—a Mr. Sheehan, to reach Judge Parker with the news of his nomination, and the first to obtain an interview with him. She has achieved success in her splendid work, "The Woman's Magazine," of the Sunday Press, of which she is the editor. This is a ten-page magazine, upon which no advertisements appear or are accepted, and $1,000 a week is spent upon the publication. When Miss Hallmark was offered this position it was with conditions and understanding that her tenure of office depended on her capability and ability to make a complete success, and that she must shoulder the entire responsibility of the department. This alone proves the material and determination of the editor, Miss Hallmark, and "The Woman's Magazine" reflects credit on this wonderful Southern girl and the paper of which it is a factor.

Miss Hallmark's contract with the Philadelphia Press debars her from writing for any other publication except by special permission of the paper. Occasionally this permission is granted and she has contributed several short stories to Ainslee's, Colliers, and the Saturday Evening Post. She is worthy of all of the great success she has made, as her own personality and originality have given her first place among the women journalists of America. She has many warm personal friends in Atlanta, where she has visited upon numerous occasions.

CHIVALRY VS. GALLANTRY WELL ILLUSTRATED.

A Pensacola father, explaining to his son the difference between true chivalry and mere gallantry, related the following, which Aleck Smith next door neighbor of the Governor at Farrington and one of his greatest admirers told the Detroit Free Press, thus:

"It is true that Governor Warner is a hard-headed man and intensely practical, but let me tell you that there is in him that rich vein of chivalry which we all admire. Let me illustrate.

"One night he was at a swell social function, and one of the diversions of the entertainment was to have each person tell in what character she or he would like to return if permitted to come back over the big divide. A number of ambitious choices had been made when it came to the Governor's turn.

"Many a man in the political swim would have aspired to come as United States Senator, President, or a man at the head of the diplomatic service. This is what the governor said:

"If the miracle of giving me a second show on earth were wrought, nothing else would please me so much as to be Mrs. Warner's second husband."

"I guess that it will keep your polished courtiers guessing to beat that."

"Now, my boy," said the Pensacolian, "it was true chivalry for a man to say that of his own wife. To have said it of any other woman would have been mere gallantry."

"Gallantry may be offensive and frequently is, to refined femininity—chivalry is always agreeable to the most sensitively constituted and is always—manly."

SENTENCE SERMONS.

(From Washington Post.)
Love leads to likeness. Richest joys are often nearest. Many follies are only refreshed by refutation.

The size of a saint does not depend on his sighs. There can be no truth without liberty.

It takes more than honey to mend the broken word. A brotherly religion will not have a sisterly sound.

Men judge deeds by their results. God by their roots.

A good shepherd does not need a crook in his character. Angels envy us our nights because of the morns they bring.

Happiness would be bleak without sorrow for a background. Always better is the thorn on the brow than one in the heart.

The less religion a man has the more he thinks he can give away. Every cry of need is God's open door to some garden of paradise.

Many men try to find the deserving poor by looking in a mirror. Keep yourself sunny and the Lord will take care of your saintliness.

The belief in an absentee God goes with that in an omnipresent devil.

Milliner-made men do not add to the might of the church militant.

If words were wings heaven would have needed enlarging long ago.

The preacher who has something to say always knows when he has said it.

The half-informed rams his ignorance down the throat of every corner; the wise man is courteously reticent, casting no pearls before swine, ramming no fish bones down unwilling throats, mistaking no tolerance for assimilation.

CUPID DEFEATED.
A half repentant bachelor, with quite a pile of rocks,

Dropped in, one day, beside the way, and bought a pair of socks.

Arrived at home—romantic joy!—he wondrously drew out

A note deep hidden in the hose—from some fair hand, no doubt.

"I'm twenty years of age," it read, "and called a country belle. With you I'd like to correspond—if you will never tell; My object matrimony is, and yours, I hope the same; If you'll address, I'll respond." And then she wrote her name.

On fire with hope, the bachelor that very evening wrote,

And folded his epistle with a kiss inside the note.

Sly Cupid had him in his mesh—no very clever catch.

For, after all, quite foolish is a half repentant bach.

But, oh, how sheepish did he feel, when from the fair unknown

This answer came, to quench his flame: "An old maid I have grown! Alas! 'twas forty years ago I planned; that fond surprise, Defeated by a heartless wretch who wouldn't advertise!"

WARRINGTON

Special to The Journal.

Warrington, July 20.—The navy band which has been furnishing the fine music this season at Palmto Beach will leave July 23 for Newnan, Ga., where they have been engaged to furnish music for the Chautauqua and will be gone for one week. They will play at the regular concert at Palmto Beach August 3.

Dr. B. L. Wright, U. S. N., who has been at the naval hospital for some time has been detached. He was succeeded by Surgeon Dennis, U. S. N.

Surgeon F. W. F. Welber has been placed in command of the naval hospital, succeeding the late Surgeon Harris, U. S. N.

The Army and Navy Union gave a smoker at Palmto Beach Monday evening in honor of the comrades on board the U. S. S. Amphitrite. Several good speeches were made by prominent men and a good time was enjoyed by all.

Messrs. Chas. Simpson, J. Stockard and J. Rauscher will leave Saturday for New York where they go to accept positions on board the new dredge that is coming to Pensacola.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. McCallister are visiting relatives in Montgomery.

Mrs. Sarah Howell, of Montgomery, is visiting friends in Warrington and Pensacola.

Mrs. J. Johnson, of Newport, R. I., is visiting in Warrington during the stay of her husband who is stationed on board the U. S. S. Amphitrite.

Mrs. J. Glover and Mrs. D. Glover spent a portion of the week in New Orleans.

Misses Olga and Carrie McAllister are visiting Pensacola friends for a week.

Miss Hazel Atsinger, who has been attending school in Brewton, Ala., has returned home.

Mrs. W. Dale is visiting friends in Mobile, Ala.

BEULAH

Special to The Journal.

Beulah, July 20.—Fodder pulling is the rule here just now and hands are hard to get to do the work. Most of the corn is just right to make good feed, and every one wants to get their corn out before helping any one else.

Mr. Ben Walters has a fine piece of corn and good judges say it will make 25 bushels to the acre or better. He is paying $1.50 per day for hands to pull fodder. He has a lot of peaches and other perishable stuff to haul off and cannot pull fodder and be on the road at the same time, so he has to make it an object for others to work for him. He has the nerve to pay 50 cents per day more than the usual wages for such work.

Mr. William Henderson has about 8 acres of very fine corn, but Henry Garrett and Wiley Weaver will give him a close call for first place. The fact of the matter is that all of the corn in this section is good and there is about five times as much planted as ever before. The man who did not plant corn last spring is in the same fix as the man who had his dish bottom up when it rained pudding. I for one will have to plead guilty.

There is some sickness in the neighborhood. Mr. John Lester has a very sick child but I hear to-day that she was somewhat better. She has been sick for about two weeks.

Mrs. Benjamin Walters is also on the sick list. Born: To C. B. Busby and wife, last Monday, July 17, a son. This makes 5 boys in the family. Buck was so much elated that he subscribed for The Journal the next morning.

Arthur Spore and children were in Pensacola Monday to bid the former's father good-bye, as he left on the 12 o'clock train for his home in Chicago. He spent the winter with his son, E. O. Spore of Pensacola.

Rev. O. M. Muscogee, preached an excellent sermon in the M. E. church at Beulah last Sunday morning and filled his appointment at Bellview in the afternoon. It is a pretty hard trip for him, but he generally gets around on time.

Our Sabbath school still continues to gain in numbers, new members being added every Sabbath. Although it rained last Sunday afternoon, attendance was larger than usual, which shows that the interest in the school is unabated.

Miss Cora Spore was in the city yesterday doing some shopping and visiting friends.

I am sorry to learn that Mrs. A. J. Busby is not doing as well as her many friends would wish. She visited Pensacola to consult a physician one day this week.

Itchiness of the skin, horrible plague. Most everybody afflicted in one way or another. Only one safe, never-failing cure. Doan's Ointment. At any drug store, 50 cents.

CRESTVIEW

Special to The Journal.

Crestview, Fla., July 20.—Mrs. Dan McLeod of Auburn was visiting at the Powell House Tuesday.

Mr. H. A. Day spent Tuesday in DeFuniak Springs.

Rev. S. F. Gale of Jacksonville, came in Friday and left for Jacksonville Monday morning.

Mr. McGowan, of the Trotter stables, Andalusia, Ala., has been selling some very fine horses and mules here the past few days.

The little 5-year-old daughter of Mrs. Edge of Lockhart, Ala., died at the residence of Mrs. Settles last Friday evening, and was buried Saturday morning.

Everybody attended the Masonic funeral ceremonies at Bethel Church Sunday. Dinner was served on the grounds. As the people were returning home quite a shower came up and drenched all that were not provided with umbrellas.

Miss Spencer, who has been on a two months' visit to her sister, Mrs. Savage, returned to her home at Webb, Fla., this morning, to the regret of the young people. Miss Spencer made many friends while here, who will be glad to see her come again.

The entertainment given by the Ladies Aid Society on Friday night, July 14, was quite a success, considering some sickness, and one death in town. The following brief program was rendered:

Song—"Work for the Night is Coming."

Prayer and Welcome, address—Rev. Gale, of Jacksonville, Fla.

Quartet—Mr. L. C. Bowers, Mr. L. S. Daburn, Miss Sallie Powell and Mrs. Nora White.

Recitation—"The Beautiful City," Miss Maggie Powell.

Song—"The Resurrection."

Reading—"The Gateway to Joy," Mrs. H. T. Powell.

Song—"Let Jesus Come With Your Heart."

Recitation—"The Starless Crown," Mrs. Nora White.

Song—"There is Power."

After this refreshments were served, and a neat little sum was added to the treasury of the Ladies Aid Society, for which its members are very grateful.

Builds up the system; puts pure, rich blood in the veins; makes men and women strong and healthy. Burdock Blood Bitters. At any drug store.
